

Dr. Robert J. 'Jamie' Spicer, M.D.

Dr. Spicer completed a fellowship of interventional spine, sports, and musculoskeletal medicine from the University of Florida.

He completed his Internal Medicine Internship at East Tennessee State University, James H. Quillen College of Medicine. He went on to complete his Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation residency at the University of Texas Southwestern, Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation.

During his residency at the University of Texas Southwestern, Dr. Spicer focused on inpatient care direction of the rehabilitation team, comprehensive outpatient clinic coverage, including electrodiagnostics, inpatient consult services, and numerous academic responsibilities, including journal clubs and teaching.

Dr. Spicer enjoys weightlifting, exercising, golf, athletics, and studying historical biographies and music.

CEDAR HILL
Pain and Rehab